Three o'clock we bring you the archive our something special from the Pacific archives. This morning one of my favorites speaking from Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta, Georgia, on civil disobedience and moral laws above government laws. Here's Dr. Martin Luther King recorded in Atlanta, November 1967.

15:56

Now, this morning, I want to talk with you a few minutes about civil disobedience. And I want to use as a subject from which to preach, but if not, but if not. There was a day when many of the Israelites found themselves in bondage in Babylon. And there was a king of Babylon by the name of Nebuchadnezzar. You read about him a good deal in the book of Daniel and it stands as an epic.

16:18

16:56

That will remain stencil on the metal sheets of unfolding generations. Nebuchadnezzar was a mighty king. And when he ruled he ruled and when he issued an order, he meant business.

17:16

And Nebuchadnezzar issued an order. He made a golden image and his Otto was that everybody under the reign of his kingship, had to bow before that golden image and worship it. Now, those of you who read the Bible remember that story. One day, Nebuchadnezzar, Colin, the judges and the governors and the shares and they had a dedicatory service for this golden image and then he said to them, I'm instructing you to see that everybody bows before this golden image but now with three young men around there one's name was Shadrach the other one's name was me Shaq and the other name was Abednego and
