

- MAN 1: OK, that was The Shame, and, of course, the song was "Move Any Mountain" from the album Intact. Let's see, there was a drop-in support group for HIV positive teenagers, which says, "It offers an opportunity for HIV positive teens to discuss their concerns with other teenagers. This group is open to any teenage person who is HIV positive, whether female, male, gay, bi, straight, or whatever. This group is provided free. For more information, contact the Montrose Counseling Center at 529-0037." The number again for the HIV positive teen support group is 529-0037.

- OK, that was Cracker. The song was "Low" from the album Kerosene Hats.
- MAN 2: Wow.
- MAN 1: Before that, a whole bunch of other stuff, including "Darkness" from Rage Against the Machine from The Crow soundtrack, Green Day from the album Dookie, and, oh, let's see.
- MAN 2: Dookie?
- MAN 1: Dookie.
- MAN 2: Wow.
- MAN 1: And we played the Pet Shop Boys.
- MAN 2: You did.
- MAN 1: Yep, from the album Very, "Dreaming of a Queen." "Of the Queen," I'm sorry. As opposed to a queen.
- MAN 2: So how are you doing?
- MAN 1: Well, I'm kind of tired.
- MAN 2: Yeah.
- MAN 1: And, I don't know, just generally bummed out. Angry. I'm an angry young fag.

MAN 2: You have always been.

MAN 1: Well, I'm still there. I'm still there.

MAN 2: There's been a lot of angry young fags in this town.

MAN 1: Yep. One in particular, Randy Phils. And the anniversary, the first anniversary of his death is coming up on Monday.

MAN 2: That was a tough one.

MAN 1: Yeah, because I knew Randy. I knew Randy very well. We demonstrated together, we laughed together, we cried together, we were angry together.

MAN 2: Jewel knew him very well too because he was at the--

MAN 1: At the care center.

MAN 2: And on the show.

MAN 1: Yeah.

MAN 2: Quite a few times, ranting and raving.

MAN 1: About something or other.

MAN 2: About something. And I can always remember him at Charlie's ranting and raving.

MAN 1: Perpetually.

MAN 2: Perpetually.

MAN 1: He knew everything on the menu by number.

MAN 2: That's the way we need to remember people, for what they did and the joy they brought.

MAN 1: Yep. But I'm over it. I'll tell you, I'm over people dying. Randy was 25.

MAN 2: Yeah.

MAN 1: And I'm just over people dying at 25.

MAN 2: Well, I don't want to steal any thunder from Randy, but statistically, well, I am 46 years old, and statistically I will not see 50. I am HIV positive, and my t-cell count has now dropped below 500, so I'm looking on the short side perhaps. This is a strange disease. You're supposed to be optimistic and stress free, and realistic at the same time. Go figure.

MAN 1: And people wonder, why are you so angry?

MAN 2: Yeah, yeah.

MAN 1: Yeah.

MAN 2: But we do have a song.

MAN 1: "Goodbye My Friend."

MAN 2: Yeah. That we like to play at times like these by Kara Bonoff. It's a pretty, pretty song and just brings good memories.
