As if someone with the AIDS virus couldn't be the cute guy who caught your glands in the store, the shy girl with their hair drawn back and a satin bow. They don't necessarily look different, you know, they can have the AIDS virus and not show it or know it for years, because aids doesn't develop right away. And a person with the AIDS virus doesn't know it. How can anyone else they can't share it puts a big, ugly dent in the aids at a glance technique, doesn't it?

 14:50
with news wrap a summary of some of the news in or affecting the gay and lesbian community for the week ending May 27 1990. The sixth annual internet National Conference on AIDS continues to generate rhetoric and growing tensions as preparations continue for the June 20 through 24th event in San Francisco. On the one hand, hundreds of organizations and individuals around the world are boycotting the conference because of United States immigration policies, which bans HIV positive people from entering the country and even with temporarily relaxed rules still require disclosure of a person's HIV positive status to their home governments. David Lewis of the Vancouver, British Columbia persons with AIDS Society described his reaction to the US government's so called relaxation of immigration restrictions during a recent interview with this way out, Rob Atkinson, what the American government does is even more insulting than the old rules they've restated. Well, we are definitely inadmissible to the United States, except for 10 days a year when they deem we were acceptable if we declare ourselves to them in advance as being people with HIV or AIDS, and it's for the purpose of going to a conference that they approve of. So they're still severely restricting the travel rights of non American citizens going into the United States who have HIV and AIDS yet they've managed to somehow categorize this as how generous they're being in the media, we will miss nothing by being here in Canada and not in San Francisco. By not attending this conference, we will have immediate access to all the information as soon as it is shared in San Francisco. The next one will be in Florence, Italy, and there's talk that the one the year after that was originally scheduled for Boston will be moved to either New Zealand or Australia or some other country with less restrictive immigration laws. The sponsors of the conference have definitely stated they will not host another one in the United States. As long as these laws remain on the books,

16:52

David Lewis of the Vancouver, British Columbia persons with AIDS Society. Meanwhile, activist and author Larry Kramer, one of the founders in New York City of act up the AIDS coalition to unleash power is urging us aids advocates to attend the conference issuing a call to riot in San Francisco, which was published in several local lesbian and gay newspapers around the country. The outspoken activist, perhaps best known for writing the play, The Normal Heart, wrote in his call for action, quote, We must riot in San Francisco from all corners of America, AIDS activists and their friends and families must come to San Francisco and make their voices heard. Kramer and other activists who disrupted last year's AIDS conference in Montreal, have reportedly already registered for this year's conference, which promises to be a stormy event, both inside and on the streets. Activists will be protesting a variety of issues, including what they characterize as the continuing foot dragging by government officials inadequately responding to the health crisis now in its second decade. Authorities are most concerned about the last day of the conference June 24, which is also a gay and lesbian Freedom Day in San Francisco, when over a quarter million people are expected to participate in or watch the city's annual Pride Parade. Earlier this week, eight advocates were back once again at the US National Institutes of Health, the hub of the federal government's response to the AIDS crisis. And once again, they were not there to congratulate anyone. Mary van clay has a story.

18:16

18:29

At least 1000 AIDS activists marched on the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Maryland 82 were arrested for trespassing in the demonstration organized by act up the AIDS coalition to unleash power. Charles friend Chino, one of the organizers of the action said the goal was to push the NIH to speed up its testing and approval of drugs to combat aids

18:50

in 10 years, they

18:51

spent about $1 billion dollars and we have basically one drug AZT, the activists called on the NIH to put special emphasis on drugs that fight the opportunistic infections that kill people with AIDS. They say that because scientists at the institution work closely with the manufacturers of AZT and DDI. Other promising leads aren't being pursued. Jack Killin the deputy director of the NIH AIDS division says that's not true.

18:56

19:17

The thing to judge by is not whether drugs are approved because you can never predict whether a drug is going to be successful when you begin it in clinical trials. What should be looked at is our track record in initiating studies but activists say the studies move too slowly, and that the NIH doesn't concentrate enough research on children, women, people of color or drug users with AIDS in San Francisco. I'm Mary van clay.

19:34

19:47

And the attempt may be underway in the United Kingdom to prohibit lesbians and unmarried women from having access to artificial insemination. Two conservative members of the House of Commons are reportedly planning to push for such an Act. In minutes the human fertilization and embryology bill, a spokesperson for the group opposed to the exclusionary proposal calls it horrific and told London's gay times that it is nothing less than saying that only certain women should be allowed to have children. It is clear that the state preferred mothers are white, able bodied, heterosexual and married and middle class.

20:24

A human rights ordinance which would protect lesbians and gay men from discrimination in Kansas City, Missouri, and also prevent discrimination based on HIV status was introduced by a city council member Katherine Shields on April 12, co sponsored by Kansas City Mayor Richard Berkeley. Supporters of the measure had predicted passage by mid May, but on May 10, the city council voted eight to five to send the proposed ordinance back to committee. Kathleen Keneally, a member of the Human Rights Ordinance project told this way out last month that her group believed that they had seven votes needed for passage, but intense pressure, especially from the city's politically powerful black religious community, apparently caused the council to return the measure to committee. Council members who had previously voiced support of the ordinance now say they believe it needs more work. This way outs Greg Gordon spoke again with the Human Rights Ordinance projects, Kathleen Keneally, they caved into pressure after we had at least 10 of the city council people who had told us committed that they were for it. They had said though, that privately that if there was too much pressure, they would back off. And they did although they've done it in such a way that they have not yet had to take a vote on the substance of the ordinance. They want to be able to say they're for it, but not vote for it.

Greg Gordon 21:44

There's something called a rule 28 in Kansas City Government will could use that isn't I think that's what you all are hoping you may be able to resurrect the ordinance rule

21:52

28 allows any city council person to pull an ordinance that has been in committee for 20 days, and to pull it out and put it back before the city council. We're trying to get someone to do that. Although if we do do that they could again do the very same thing of voting it back into committee. There's probably intense pressure among council members among themselves, not to invoke rule 28 Because there's obviously such a feeling that so many council members don't want to have to take a public stand on it. That's exactly right. It is a political hot potato and they do not want to do the right thing.

Greg Gordon 22:11

22:23

22:29

Meanwhile, lesbians and gay men and Alameda County California, which includes the cities of Berkeley and Oakland had better luck with their board of supervisors Wendell Harper reports on the passage of an anti discrimination measure in that Northern California County.

22:43

It's termed prohibition of discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation, discrimination prohibited and affirmative action requirements sub contracting and requires posting of notices prohibiting such discrimination. Pat, board Service Employees International Union Local 616 says that labor group welcome for legislation, but it wants the county to keep its foot on the accelerator, SEIU in 89 was able for the first time to get the lead mainly for domestic partners. And we were able to get sexual orientation and a contract with a previous contract. So we're really happy to see the county move in that direction. And we want to also make sure that the civil service will will, will address the issue of discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation because they don't presently do that. All contracts to which the county is party so the policy shall include language that calls on the contractor or subcontractors to not discriminate on the basis of sexual orientation. The resolution concludes by saying, however, that the county is not required under its meaning to establish affirmative action goals or standards in excess of those required by state or federal law. This is window hyper.

23:57

The human dignity ordinance. The recently passed lesbian and gay civil rights law in San Diego, California, officially took effect on May 16. initial efforts to have the ordinance repealed have apparently failed. Very Jan's a conservative political consultant, and chair of the group opposed to the ordinance San Diego citizens for equal rights, admitted that his group had been unable to gather the required number of signatures on a petition drive equal to 5% of the electorate, which would have placed the issue before San Diego voters during interviews on local radio stations. However, janss talked about mounting another petition drive which would place a specific anti gay and lesbian proposal on the ballot, which, if passed, would effectively repeal the human dignity ordinance.

24:45

And finally, an army colonel who performed in drag at an AIDS charity benefit in Colorado Springs, Colorado may be facing military court martial proceedings for conduct unbecoming an officer. Colonel Edward Modesto, a dental surgeon at Fort Carson, CA Colorado who said he's bisexual wore a wig and sequined gown as he lip synched Bette Midler songs during his performance at the AIDS benefit. A hearing will consider accusations against Modesto of engaging in homosexual acts and indecent exposure as a result of his charitable act.

25:19

That's news wrap for the week ending May 27 1990. written this week by Greg Gordon, with contributions from other publications and broadcast throughout the world.

26:17

27 AIDS activists were arrested on May 22. After disrupting the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors meeting with shouts for increased AIDS funding. Deputies wearing rubber gloves remove them from the room. Chanting and carrying banners that read 80,000 dead from AIDS and county board does nothing. The over 100 demonstrators interrupted the board's proceedings about half an hour after they convened. Three of the four supervisors President left the room, leaving only supervisor Ed Elman, who stayed throughout the demonstration.

26:59

The night before the demonstration ACT UP gave support to the overworked healthcare workers at County Hospital. Marcus daflores. A spokesperson for ACT UP Los Angeles describe their action. We kicked off what will be a long hot summer by going to the county hospital and having an overnight vigil. Approximately 60 People spent the night in front of the hospital. We were there to draw attention to the conditions that the staff have to work under they try very hard but it's absolutely impossible to deliver the kind of quality care that basic human rights demand. From the hospital we caravan to the Board of Supervisors because it is the board themselves have control of the budget that keeps the hospital in the shape that it is to staff LIS explained why ACT UP disrupted the supervisors meeting that morning.

27:47

27:52

We are they're demanding improvements in the outpatient system specifically that the County Board approved the budget request of their own aides commission for a $9 million increase in the AIDS budget this coming year. People who are not being reached with information primarily poor people, Latinos blacks are dying early. We're demanding the county put in place a system that will get that information to them are also demanding that the county stopped delaying construction of a new outpatient facility at the county hospital. We held a demonstration last year when 16 people were arrested at that time that the board promised us a new facility would be in place by this year that by spring of this year. Ground has not even been broken and we're tired of the county board lying to

28:41

Microsoft lists of backed up Los Angeles. The 27 activists arrested were all charged with disturbing the peace. Two of the men were additionally charged with battery on a police officer Helene Spock, one of four women arrested disgust, overzealous police response to the civil disobedience during a phone call she was able to make from jail.

29:01

They were using unnecessary holes. Take appliances, totally unnecessary. They were dragging people who could have gotten up there had put on some restraints so tight that one then risks were bleeding. Many people had lost feelings in their hands. I'd say it was quite excessive.

29:20

Spock said that if there weren't significant changes, they will be back next year.

29:25

The waiting list is two months long at County USC right now. I mean, they're literally dying to get treatment. If we have to come back here again next year. It just means all those many hundreds of people have died. Just waiting for a little compassion for a little extra money to try and do something with this AIDS pandemic and our health care system. I certainly hope we don't have to be back here but it's unfortunate that we do we will.

29:51

That was Helene Spock one of 27 act up Los Angeles members arrested during disruption of a county board of supervisors meeting earlier this week. For this way out, I'm Sandy Dwyer gonna walk for we're gonna keep on rockin bow. Keep on walking forward. Keep on walking. Never turning never turning

Lucy Chappelle 30:56

you're listening to this way out the international lesbian and gay radio magazine with Greg Gordon, I'm Lucia Chappelle. lesbians and gay men from all over the world are traveling to Stockholm, Sweden in July for the 12th annual conference of the International lesbian and gay Association. Reporter class Gilling met with the association's information Secretariat, David Murphy in Stockholm, to get a preview of this year's event will attend this year's conference. We expect people from all over the world the iFJ has members in over 50 countries and most of these send a representative at last year's conference in Vienna, we had 264 delegates, we hope to have as many if not more this year. In addition to the obvious members from Europe, we'll have people from Canada, Mexico, Peru, Chile, Argentina, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, Japan, Nicaragua. And of course, the United States. We're especially glad to see that so many US groups are sending representatives this year. What are the main topics of the conference, there will be a series of workshops, some of them are discussion based, some are experiential, a lot of information sharing goes on. We'll have workshops, for example, on AIDS, a whole series of workshops on AIDS, we'll have reports from the different regions so that we can find out about the situation in South Africa and Latin America and so on. There'll be a workshop on lesbian visibility, where we'll hear about the situation for lesbians around the world. There will be a panel workshop on the gay and lesbian media, a workshop for openly gay and lesbian politicians. And listen to the reports and the networking that gets established during the conference. It's a time for us to do our business with the various I LJ projects. We have, for example, projects with Amnesty International with the World Health Organization. With the European community and Council of Europe. We have a project now to get consultative status with the United Nations. There's the iceberg project, which is documenting cases of discrimination. There are a number of projects and information pools, which will also be given giving reports and planning strategy for the coming year. What about concrete actions during that week? Demonstration?

33:34

33:37

Yes. Right now we have two demonstrations proposed one against Argentina, and one also against the immigration laws in the United States.

33:47

33:49

What about social?

33:51

Yeah, that's right, we're going to have fun as well. It's not all business. In the evenings. There are a number of activities planned. We'll have a boat tour hopefully, of the Swedish archipelago, we'll have a reception at City Hall, the site of the Nobel Prizes, there will be a special level lesbian evening, and hopefully lesbian entertainer, Lynn Laughner from United States will be present. There'll be a special men's evening, there'll be an evening one will have an open house so that all the Swedish groups can present themselves and people can get a taste of the Swedish lesbian and gay movement. There's also a special cabaret evening, being planned by to black the cultural workers group for the Nordic countries. So in addition to all the work that we'll do during the days, we hope to have fun and get to know each other better, just as people, if any listener now wants to join the conference, first of all, they should contact our office cell at Box 35010124. Stockholm, Sweden, or they can call the iFJ information Secretariat, then number is 468-736-0217. We encourage people to register as soon as possible so that we can make all the practical arrangements. If you do just show up and register for the conference, the fee will be slightly higher. Well, finally, what about next year's conference?

35:18

35:20

Well, plans are being made to have the conference in Guadalajara, Mexico, but that will be finalized at this year's conference. And then in 1992, as all Europe is looking forward to the European unity, the conference should be in Brussels. And there are rumors that 1993 or 1994 we may be in New York.

35:44

Well, thank you very much,

35:45

David. Thank you.

35:47

This is clause ULINK for this way out in Stockholm Sweden.

Greg Gordon 36:58

Memorial Day is observed during the end of May in the United States to honor those who have fought and died in America's wars. Another type of memorial has also become an annual tradition at the end of May. But this observance takes place around the world. Here's my Kakori to introduce our final story.

37:17

Candlelight memorials for people who have died of AIDS took place in more than 225 cities and 30 countries around the world. Although her husband wasn't involved, First Lady Barbara Bush place candles in the windows of the White House. And what was the first official symbolic show of support for the memorials from Pennsylvania Avenue, organized by the group mobilization against AIDS memorials have become the world's largest AIDS event reflecting both the spread of the epidemic itself and a rise in community activism by people with AIDS. Heidi Semak has the story.

37:55

This is the sound of 20,000 people in San Francisco holding candles and shouting out the names of people they loved and lost to AIDS, we can see that activism is spreading throughout the world around aids. The memorial is the first thing a community will do publicly to acknowledge that they're dealing with people in their community dying from AIDS,

38:05

38:19

Paul bolanburg, as executive director of mobilization against AIDS, the San Francisco group coordinating the commemorations this year, we have 40 new cities joining us. That's an indication that in those towns, some people said, It's time for us to say that there's aids here in Bismarck, and it's time for us to take action about it. And hopefully the candlelight will be the beginning of their activism. And what will continue on will be education programs and care programs and lobbying programs and all the things that then begin from that point.

38:27

38:49

taking the first step can be extremely difficult in small or conservative towns and cities where aids predominantly affects gay men and predominantly affects gay men.

38:58

AIDS is such a clause at issue down here. People are afraid to get involved in the help, you know to fight AIDS and have a feel like there are a lot of people in the community that are afraid to even be tested. It's like they don't even want to admit that it's here. But we know that it is in Shreveport, Louisiana, Kenneth King helped organize an elaborate Memorial featuring sympathetic religious leaders, a local blues singer, poetry reading and a sign language performing group in keeping with mobilization against AIDS as wishes King says people with AIDS or PW A's do participate in the event. But sadly, he says none are willing to speak out publicly.

We have not been able to find someone you know who was not afraid that they would be discriminated against in some way or suffer any of the other injustices that that have come out of ignorance toward the virus mobilization against AIDS. decorative director Paul bolanburg.

40:02

They've never organized an event. They've never organized an AIDS event. There's never been anything gay public. And often people are organized as gay people. And so suddenly to go forward and say, Let's do in our little town, a public event, everyone will know that we're probably we're gay, but and they'll know some of us have AIDS, but we're going to do it anyhow, because it'll make it better. That's just really a hard thing for people to do.

40:21

It was a similar story for Paul king of Denton City, Texas, who organized that city's first AIDS Memorial this year. King says Dentons AIDS cases are underreported in the county, because most patients go to nearby Dallas or Fort Worth for their health care.

40:39

That is just a massive case of denial that operates here in the county. Since there were that is just a massive case of denial that operates here in the county. Since there were healthcare services that were available. And cities like Dallas and cities like Fort Worth, it was a lot easier to deny the fact that there was a really a problem here. And it's time for people to come out and let them realize that yes, they are aware of the fact this disease is here and yes, I want people to know how I feel about it.

41:03

City's holding aids memorials worldwide this year included Tokyo, Japan, Bogota, Colombia, Santiago, Chile, Nicosia, Cyprus, Warsaw, Poland, Prague, Czechoslovakia and Soweto township in South Africa. From San Francisco, California, this is Heidi's amok.
